my vision

Cocktail is an absolutely superfluous and unnecessary thing. Just as a painting, a statue, a piece of music, a work of art, all things that we don't need, are unnecessary. Today, a cocktail has a place only if it gives pleasure, if it arouses emotions, if it brings joy like a fine painting, a statue, a piece of music, a work of art. That is why I'm convinced cocktails "must" be good. Otherwise, seeing that we don't need it, why should we drink it?

cedar bar

The bar team have created an endless number of cocktails for any taste or celebration. Our organic fruit cocktails, made with fresh fruit and a secret ingredient are blended to order. Our special Martini, made with Potocki vodka, a Polish family-owned brand since 1816.

"I seek out venues around the world which share our dedication to providing quality in combination with impeccable service. It is thus my great pleasure to associate Potocki Wódka with the Cedar Bar at Lainston House.

Artisanally distilled from 100% Polish rye, Potocki Wódka brings out the full flavour of the grain while offering a rich and smooth texture. It is ideally suited for dry martinis which Francesco and his team will prepare to perfection".

Martini corner

The first cocktail was mixed some 200 years ago. One of the earliest originated in the United States and started out under the guise of The Martini and its precursor, The Martinez (our house classic is famously made with "Old Tom Gin" and lovingly recreated exclusively for The Best at Lainston House). The legendary Harry Craddock, who once mixed drinks in this great room, lists in "The Savoy Cocktail Book" (1930) two different recipes for a Dry Martini. His first is the Dry Martini Cocktail in which the recipe is equal parts gin and dry Vermouth with a dash of Orange Bitters and the second being the "Martini" (DRY) Cocktail using one part dry Vermouth and two parts gin, without the Orange Bitters. It's worth nothing that the original Dry Martini derived its name from the fact that it included dry instead of sweet Vermouth.

Nothing really changed until the 1940's and 1950's. The use of Bitters in Martinis disappeared and Vermouth became less and less important as an ingredient. During the 1960's the Martini took a back seat, to wine appreciation and to the insurgence of the spirit, mixer and beer market. It wasn't until the mid-1980 that people started to rediscover the Martini which was now perceived as a cocktail "icon". It was during this period that cocktails became known as Martinis and bartenders became mixologists.
